2022 Report to the Community
The River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF) is the “go to” organization when our local nonprofits are looking for a trusted partner.

When COVID struck, RCCF led the partnership that opened the YMCA’s early childcare program for emergency and essential workers. The Town of Kilmarnock and the Lancaster Department of Social Services teamed with RCCF to lead the response to the devastating fire in the Town of Kilmarnock. And even private citizens have turned to RCCF for advice.

Melissa Bunns-Carter was working to create a workforce housing development in Lancaster County. She sought advice from RCCF. “I found RCCF’s connections and resources extremely beneficial,” said Bunns-Carter. “RCCF is a highly respected organization and they have built a business partnership that speaks directly to the core values of my organization.”

RCCF has the stable infrastructure vital to responding. With its local office, full-time professional staff, financial strength, and a proven track record, it can get help to places where it will have the most impact.

Mark Walker, Senior Program Officer for the Jessie Ball duPont Fund, has worked with RCCF many times.

“The River Counties Community Foundation is a trusted partner in our goal of supporting the Northern Neck and Middle Peninsula communities and organizations which Jessie Ball duPont cared so much about,” Walker said. “From crisis responses like the fire in Kilmarnock, to pandemic response via the COVID-19 relief fund, to community-building opportunities like Dream Fields and the Lancaster Community Mobile Library, our partnership helps to make meaningful progress in building financial, educational, health, and cultural assets for those in need in the Lancaster, Middlesex, and Northumberland Counties.”
When fire fueled by strong winds destroyed seven apartments and five businesses in the heart of Kilmarnock, River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF) partnered with the Town of Kilmarnock and with the Lancaster County Department of Social Services to respond to the urgent and immediate needs of the six families displaced by the fire, as well as the funeral expenses of the one resident who died in the fire.

After the Kilmarnock fire, Town Manager Susan Cockrell reached out to RCCF to find a funding pathway to help displaced residents. “RCCF had the capacity to receive funds from the community and to provide charitable donation letters to donors. Best of all, there was an established relationship with Lancaster County Department of Social Services, and a simple mechanism to route funds to the affected families. This was a win/win for all,” Cockrell said.

More than 140 individual donors and local businesses contributed more than $90,000 to the Kilmarnock Fire Relief Fund. The Jesse Ball duPont Fund and the Matthews Community Foundation also donated. And Horn’s Northern Neck Ace Hardware gave the proceeds from the sale of t-shirts, emblazoned with #kilmarnockstrong, to the relief efforts.

“This fund represents what happens when nonprofits, businesses, and community members join hearts and hands to ensure that resources will be available to help the families meet their needs as our community recovers,” said Kilmarnock Mayor Mae Umphlett.

The funds were distributed by the Lancaster County Department of Social Services to those displaced, to help them rebuild their lives. Residents of the apartments had to find new homes and replace basic items, such as clothes destroyed in the fire.

Small communities like Kilmarnock rarely experience crises like the fire, which displaced so many.

Over the years, RCCF has been an organization to which others turn to meet big challenges.
Dear Friends,

We are pleased to present River Counties Community Foundation’s (RCCF) 2022 Report to the Community.

The past three years have proven that no one can predict the future. An organization like RCCF gives the community and our nonprofit partners the reassurance that support will be available to weather any storm. The responses to the COVID pandemic and the fire in downtown Kilmarnock are examples of how RCCF offers that reassurance. Through your generosity, RCCF raised and granted more than $1 million to support nonprofits providing aid to essential and emergency personnel, healthcare for those affected by the virus, and children struggling with virtual learning at home.

On the morning of April 19, 2022, a devastating fire erupted in downtown Kilmarnock. Among the buildings affected were five small businesses and seven apartments. Unfortunately, one apartment resident perished in the fire. The outpouring of support from local businesses and generous donors across the country was truly remarkable. RCCF received 140 donations totaling more than $90,000, all of which were given to the survivors of the fire to rebuild their homes and their lives, and for the final expenses of the resident who perished.

At the end of 2021, we said farewell to three important members of the RCCF family. Board Chair Carolyn Norton Schmalenberger and Dr. David R. Suyes retired from the board after many years of exemplary service to our community. Margaret Nost, RCCF’s long-time regional director, also embarked on her own retirement. We thank them for their contributions to RCCF, without which we would not be where we are today.

We hope that you will read the following report with pride, knowing that you are a part of what makes this work possible. To learn more about the foundation, please reach out to regional director Lincoln Boykin, philanthropic advisor Jonathan Putt, or any of our Advisory Board members.

We know that by working Together, we are making our community Stronger!
The new Lancaster Early Childhood Education Center (LECEC), which will be operated by the Lancaster County Public Schools in partnership with the Northern Neck YMCA, will soon have a state-of-the-art playground, funded in part by the River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF).

This public/private partnership is one of only a handful in the Commonwealth of Virginia in the area of early childhood education.

The LECEC will have seven classrooms which will serve 140 children (one- to three-year-old students, two- to four-year-olds, and a regional special education group).

Playgrounds are critical to children’s development — more so than many people realize.

Not only do playgrounds offer the obvious physical benefits of kids becoming healthier and stronger, but they also provide the context and opportunity for children to practice key developmental and social skills. Playgrounds help with balance and teach kids to know where their body is in space. They also allow children to practice fine motor skills, such as gripping a rope, gross motor skills such as pumping legs to swing higher, and coordination. This specific playground includes a large climbing structure, specialized surfaces that allow for accessibility for a wheelchair, a walking path, swings, a music center, and several other activity centers.

It will also have a special surface with the highest fall prevention.

“The LECEC’s state-of-the-art playground design will enable our pre-school children to benefit from daily physical activity using a variety of playground equipment specifically designed for small children,” said Bill Warren, a director of the Lancaster County Virginia Education Foundation. “Just as important, our children will be able to develop their social and inter-personal skills while playing with their classmates in a fun setting.”

The 7,000 square foot playground will be located immediately behind the building with no vehicular traffic between the building and the playground. The playground is designed by Sparks@Play, known for its innovative playground plans.

The LECEC is in the former community library, next to the current middle school, which is being converted to be the new elementary school.
Building a THRIVING COMMUNITY

One of the ways RCCF helps to build a healthy and thriving community is through its competitive grants program, offered once a year. This program is funded by the generosity of donors who have created flexible funds to respond to community needs as they change or emerge over time. It is available to eligible 501(c)3 nonprofit organizations and agencies providing programs that directly impact Lancaster, Middlesex, and Northumberland counties and improve the quality of life for their residents.

This year, RCCF awarded 54 grants totaling $1,040,791.

For a full listing of all community impact grants funded by RCCF, visit our website, www.rivercountiescf.org. Here are examples of programs supported by RCCF’s community impact grants in the foundation’s five impact areas.

EDUCATIONAL SUCCESS

Jacob's Ladder’s mission is to aid and encourage intellectually gifted, at-risk middle school through high school students to reach their full potential and become leaders equipped to help others in similar economic and social situations. One way the organization accomplishes this mission is through a five-week residential summer enrichment camp, which students can attend free of charge each summer for four to five years. Students explore their own talents, while being exposed to subjects not often found in a typical classroom.

The camp experience is supported by a year-round advocacy program which provides six in-person “touchpoints” for families, staff, students, and mentors to gather and to solidify and reinforce the continued participation of students and families in the Jacob’s Ladder program.

Jacob’s Ladder addresses the needs of those who are often in environmental and economic situations which preclude them from academic enrichment opportunities. Studies show that school budgets for gifted programs are tight or nonexistent, and gifted children in the school population are often overlooked. Gifted children who come from a background of poverty or a minority population are often further neglected within their system.

COMMUNITY VIBRANCY

The Howland Chapel School Museum will house documents to educate the community on the history of the Howland school and its impact on education of African-Americans in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Housed in Heathsville, the school was built specifically for educating African-American children, making it possibly the first public school and the oldest graded school in the Northern Neck. It is the sixth oldest wood
The Northumberland County Board of Supervisors recently introduced the Northumberland Anti-Litter Committee, which will partner with the students to help reduce the unwanted dumping of tires along the roadsides and in the rivers around the county. For many years, another community organization involved students in their highway and creek cleanups. Through those efforts, students realized that the county does not have a place to recycle or dispose of tires. Many of those tires were simply thrown into the roadside wood lines or waterways.

This program will teach students about the environmental impact of litter in the community. It also will introduce them to organizations which can collaborate on environmental service projects with the schools.

ECONOMIC PROSPERITY

Linking Hope and Help (The Link) is all about helping people with emergency needs, such as utility and rent payments. Many of these people live below the poverty line. But it is also helping clients to achieve greater self-sufficiency with assistance from The Link’s Resources Consultant.

The Resources Consultant speaks with all clients about their needs, beyond the emergency which brought them to The Link in the first place. In these conversations, she listens to their concerns and offers a variety of community resources which could help.

ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDSHIP

Through the Northumberland County Community Problem Solvers Tire Disposal program, students are partnering with community organizations to combat unlawful tire disposal in Northumberland County. They are organizing a Northumberland County “tire disposal day” where community members can dispose of their old tires safely and responsibly.

DOLLAR AMOUNT DISTRIBUTED IN 2022: $1,040,791

One of the ways River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF) allocates funds to community nonprofits is through the annual Community Impact Grants program. Nonprofits are notified of when to submit program applications, which are then reviewed and evaluated by RCCF’s Grants Committee and approved by the RCCF Advisory Board.

Over the years, even as RCCF’s endowed assets grew, the needs of the community continued to exceed available funding. RCCF decided to react proactively to this situation by implementing an annual fund initiative, known as Together.Stronger.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Together. Stronger. provides an easy and effective avenue for those who want to give to have a broad impact. This funding has been available for supporting the Community Impact Grants program and, importantly, meeting unforeseen emergencies. The COVID pandemic is one the most prominent of these emergencies. Natural disasters are another. RCCF makes it easy to give, too. Just scan the QR Code to the right and make your donation online today.

Thank you for supporting RCCF and causes that matter.

The River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF) Legacy Society was created to recognize donors who have made a planned gift which has included RCCF in their wills, trusts, or estates.

Legacy Society donors may gift a portion or all of their estate to RCCF. Many donors create bequest agreements which outline how the estate gifts are to be administered. If a donor's charitable priorities change during his or her lifetime, the bequest agreement is easily updated to reflect those changes. However, not all Legacy Society donors create a bequest. They prefer to leave their gift unrestricted to be used by the RCCF Advisory Board to make the community a better place for future generations.

Gloria Stone Wallace was one of the founding members of RCCF in 1996 and a Legacy Society member. She was also a member of the RCCF grants committee for 25 years. She was a natural organizer, mover and shaker, serving as chair of the Lancaster Community Library, founding the “Sundays at Two” lecture series, and supporting the Foundation for Historic Christ Church. Gloria also chaired numerous committees at Rappahannock Westminster-Canterbury. She passed away at the age of 97 in August 2021.

To learn how to become a Legacy Society member, please contact Jonathan Putt, Philanthropic Advisor, at (804) 436-1600 or jputt@cfrichmond.org.

Together.Stronger. Annual Fund Strengthens the RCCF Mission

One of the ways River Counties Community Foundation (RCCF) allocates funds to community nonprofits is through the annual Community Impact grants program. Nonprofits submit grant applications, which are then reviewed and evaluated by RCCF’s Grants Committee and approved by the RCCF Advisory Board.

Over the years, even as RCCF’s endowed assets grew, the needs of the community continued to exceed available funding. In response, RCCF decided to adopt an annual fund initiative, known as Together.Stronger.

The RCCF Board realized many residents of the community, while philanthropically inclined, did not know how to go about adequately supporting the many worthwhile local nonprofits. Together.Stronger. provided an easy and effective avenue for their philanthropy to have a broad impact. More than 700 individual contributions, totaling more than $600,000, have been received in the first eight years of the Together.Stronger. campaign. This funding has been available to support the Community Impact grants program and, importantly, meeting unforeseen emergencies.

RCCF has received many generous gifts to the Together.Stronger. initiative. The Board wishes to express its deep gratitude to all those who have contributed over the years. This support has helped to strengthen RCCF and the many important nonprofits that serve the varied needs present in our region.
